THE WARRINGTON CITY ELECTION-A CLOSE CON TEST_THE ARKANSAS BILL-PROBABLE FATE OF THE OMNIBUS BILL—THE NEW SECRETARY OF

WASHINGTON, June 2.—There has been no official statement of yesterday's election. The most reliable statement is that Given (Democrat) is elected by twenty-six majority, exclusive of one hundred and forty votes, which were tickets with a flag on the back and Grant's face at the head which were laid aside for future decision. In the upper Board there is a tie, and in the lower the Democrats have three majority. Two blacks were elected to Council. The latest figures elect Bowen (Radical) Mayor by eighty-three votes.

The Arkansas bill goes back to the House for concurrence in Drake's modified amendment, which provides that there shall never be rens on account of race or color, except

- IN THE SENATE, the Judiciary Committee reported the bill, recently passed by the House, Louisiana and Georgia, with amendments, and it comes up for consideration to-morrow.

Mr. Edmunds reported a resolution conditionally excluding from the electoral college the votes of States lately in rebellion, which was referred to the Judiciary Committee. The following is Edmund's resolution:

Chief Justice Chase arrived to-day and is the guest of Judge H. J. Bond. He will preside to-morrow, and will probably remain until after the trial of some unimportant cases. The Davis trial will be postponed until October, by agreement, as already stated. Among the new witnesses summoned in the case are Generals Hautraft, Wilcox and Sharp of the Union Army; Generals Fitz Lee, Cooper and Gordon, of the Confederate Army. Burton N. Harrison, private secretary, is also on the witness list.

Burning of a Steamer and Loss of Life New OBLEANS, June 2.—The steamer Ben McCulloch took fire on the 26th May, while lying up for the night in Ouachita River, between Trenton and Camden, and was burned to the water's edge. Three lives were lost, viz: Wm. H. Scott, of Arkansas, and Mrs. Byan and daughter of Alabams.

The National Currency—An Important Measure—The amendments to the bill referred to the Senate Committee of Finance, March 16th, supplementary to the national currency act of Juns 3, 1868, reported from the committee by 14r. Sherman Friday, provide that the maxim; millimit of national circulation fixed by said and shall be increased twenty millions (which amount is to be issued only to banking associations organized in States or Tearifornes having a less circulation than five dollars for each inhabi, and, and so as to equalize the circulation in such States and Territories in proportion to population), that banks in ise the circulation in such States and Territories in proportion to population), that banks in liquidation shall be required to take up their bonds within ninety days after the date of notice to go into liquidation; in default of which the bonds are to be sold at auction in New York, and proceeds applied to payment of their outstanding circulation; also, that any association which has heretofore gone into liquidation under the provisions of the section now amended shall take up its bonds within thirty days from the passage of this bill, unless its liquidation be for purpose of consolidation with another bank.

THE BANKE PLANT.—The ramie plant, which was introduced into this country from Java, to the soil of which it is indige out, is attracting much attention in the South. At an agricultural fair recently held in Alabama, it was one of the special features of the exhibition. It is claimed that, if properly cultivated and worked, it will eventually take the place of cotton, and supply any deficiency in that great stapte is oduction. Its fibres are said to be much fibrar and stronger than the best flax; that they are as fine as sea island cotton, and that, after cleaning, they become very soft and that they are as fine as sea island cotton, and that, after cleaning, they become very soft and white, and take colors as readily as the finest wool or silk. Several articles of clothing made from this fabric were exhibited at the fair referred to, and were particularly neticed for the strength and beauty o the material. The cultivation of the rame plant has been successful on a number of plantations in Alabama.

POLITICAL SUMMARY.

THE ARRANSAS BILL-THE SOUTHERN RECON-STRUCTED STATES-THE WOOLLEY INVESTIGA-TION-"MANAGER" BUTLER QUIETLY SET DOWN BY THE SPEAKER—INTERESTING PROCEEDING OF THE HOUSE, &C.

The Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun writes under date of Sunday evening:

The Senate again occupied the entire day yesterday in the debate on the Arkansas bill. The discussion which has taken place on this bill has developed the fact that there exists a great difference of opinion among the Radical reconstruction doctors, and all the frank admissions of Meesrs. Wilson and Conness that the votes of those States will be necessary to secure the election of Grant and Colfax have so far proved utterly futile in arresting the opposition made to the bill by many of their associates. more Sun writes under date of Sunday evening:

sition made to the bill by many of their associates.

Now that the impeachment project has met such an inglorious defeat, and it seems that nothing can be gained by remaining here to watch the President, there is a strong disposition to get away as soon as possible. The most anxious members place the utmost limit of the session at the first of July, but, as pertinently remarked by Mr. Wilson, at the rate business is being disposed of now, the necessary legislation cannot be finished for months to come. The Radicals are satisfied that it is as much as their salvation is worth to keep back the Southern States any longer, and it is not at all probaple that the adjournment will take place before these States are admitted. Mr. Drake and the few other uneasy spirits understand this perfectly well, but they are so wedded to their own pet projects that it seems they will urge them even at the risk of endangering everything.

to their own pet projects that it seems they will urge them even at the risk of endangering everything.

The amendment of Mr. Terry to strike out the conditions of admission of Arkansas was only lost yesterday by one vote, and would have been carried had a full Senate been present. There is little doubt that some more amendments will yet be tacked to the bill, which will necessitate its going back to the House. It was in the first instance rushed through that body under the operation of the previous question, but there are a number of Radicals of the House who now say that if it somes back they will oppose it. Then, after it is finally cassed, the Freeident will have ten days in which to return it. The commibus bill for the fix other States which have so far adopted constitutions will of course, provoke quite as lengthy discussion, so that the chances are that these States will not have representatives in Congress before July, if them.

Mr. Edminds is very anxious to get up and press to a speedy passage his high sounding resolution of thanks to Mr. Stanton, and has made the effort two or three times a day since he first offered it; but his brother Radicals, although, of course, they will support it when it does come up, seem rather inclined to turn the cold shoulder upon it. The opportunity which it will afford to ventilate some of the acts of Mr. Stanton, both recent and remote, will not be lost sight of by the Conservatives.

The time of the House of Representatives was taken up for two hours again yesterday in a discussion of which Charles W. Woolley was the first cause. The subject was called up by Mr. Speaker Colfax, who wanted the House to construe its own resolution relative to the withholding of verbal and written communications from the witness. There is in the House of Representatives a respectable minority of Reholding of verbal and written communications from the witness. There is in the House of Representatives a respectable minority of Republicans, such men, for instance, as Judge Poland and Mr. Woodbridge, of Vermont, Mr. Baker and Mr. Ingersoll, of Illinois, Mr. Lawrence, of Pennsylvania, Mr. Banks, of Massachusetts, and Mr. Blair, of Michigan, who are very much disgusted with the extreme proceedings of the managers, led by Mr. Buller, in this Woolley business.

With the gentlemen named the Speaker inclines to agree, and hence he gave a liberal construction to the order of the House and permitted Woolley to receive a sealed telegram advising Woolley to "stand firm," was sent by Woolley to Manager Butler, with his compliments, and the latter, conceiving himself insulted thereby, took the Speaker in task for permitting the "recusant witness" to have the telegram originally. This occurred in the Speaker's room just before the House was called to order on Saturday, and as Mr. Butler left the room he intimated that he had prepared a resolution upon the subject. The Speaker was sharp emough, however, not to let Butler have the first say, and accordingly, as soon as the journal was read, he stated what he had done, and saked the House to construe its own order for had was read, as stated what he had only at saked the House to construe its own order for his future guidance. Mr. Butler was annoyed at being thus anticipated, but he nevertheless offered a resolution to the effect that no tele-grams or letters should be allowed to go to grams or letters should be allowed to go the witness until after they had been inspect the witness until after they had been impected by the Speaker.

This brought upon Mr. Butler, and, through him, upon the managers a quiet but at the same time a severe rebuke—the more severe because it came from the man who was placed because it came from the man who was placed by the Chicago Convention in the leadership of the party. Without giving Mr. Butler time to explain his resolution, the Speaker said he did not deem he had a right to open anything in a scaled envelope, aren by the order of the House. Mr. Butler, having apparently misun-derstood the Speaker's remark, said, "I sup-posed the Speaker could do so by the order of the House." but Mr. Colfax, with some em-phasis, repeated the words, "not even by the order of the House."

Here was a turn of affairs unlooked for, and Butler actually changed color and looked around, first at Mr. Boutwell and then at Mr. Bingham, to know what next to do. He had become so accustomed to tearing open and Bingham, to know what next to do. He had become so accustomed to tearing open and reading other people's telegrams that he never for a moment supposed that any one would question the right. He was therefore much annoyed, and the feeling of annoyance was not at all allayed when Mr. Fernando Wood reminded him that there were some things that even the House of Representatives could not do. The fact is that the committee had been seeing in a birch-handed manner and supposed. do. The fact is that the committee had been acting in a high-handed manner, and supposed that the power of the House would be a sufficient shield of protection for them; but the Speaker's decisive announcement could not fail to suggest to the minds of the managers the query, "If the Speaker would not feel justified in opening a private maner, even by order of in opening a private paper, even by order of the House, by what authority have we taken possession of and read private telegrams, the House never having so much as given us per-mission so to do."

The Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Gazette writes under date of the 31st

In response to President Johnson's telegram, General Schofield arrived here last night, accompanied by his sids, and took quarters at Willard's. This morning he visited the White House and had a protracted interview with the President, with whom he is in perfect accord in all particulars. It has been arranged that General Schofield shall receive his commission as Scretary of War in the morning, and at ten o'clock be sworn in and take charge of the department. General Thomas retires from the Cabinet and resumes his duties as Adjutant-General of the army. At ten o'clock to-morrow he will reopen his old quarters and give them a thorough finnigation. In the meantime the command of the First Military District devolves upon Gen. Stoneman, who retains General Schofield's old staft, with the exception of his aids, who accompany the general, and will be assigned duty here. The military commission of General Schofield is not vacated by his acceptance of the position as Secretary of War. Thus has the lanotty question of the War Department been solved by the simple operation of confirming Mr. Stanton's successor, something which could as easily have been done six months ago, and which would have avoided the Congressional farce of impeachment and the shameful expenditure of several hundred thousand dollars which it has cost the government.

INCIDENTS AT GRANT'S HOUSE-THE NEGRO DELEGATE SNUBBED-AN INQUIRING COMMIT-TERMAN-INCONSISTENCY OF THE BADICAL MOGULS.

The Washington Express, sketching the scenes at Grant's house when the nominations were formally announced, says:

Ohief Manager Washburne, the signpost of the Presidential candidate—impelled by duty—jumped around like unto a hen upon a hot griddle. He must be present at all introductions; he must bear every one in and every one out; he must bear all remarks made to his candidate, and if needs be, assist in the answer. To the ladies he was a perfect Charles the Tenth; to the committee a Grandfather Whitehead; to the gneets generally the all-powerful leverage that would grant all that's asked; to the press an excoding inconvenience and a decided bore, with the anxious remark of "be sure you've got it right." As he stood at the refreshment table, smiling benignly upon his protege, and glancing askance at the different faces there presented, doubtless revolving in his mind which he would send (when he became Secretary of State) to this mission or that, his thoughts even forgot themselves, and his destruction of strawberries and cream was immense. Donnelly would have no show with Manager Washburne last evening.

Grant and Colfax were near each other at were formally announced, says :

Grant and Colfax were near each other at Grant and Colfax were near each other at the table, each enjoying an ice, when up atalked a Western member of the committee, with an inquiring mind for facts, and addressing Gen. Grant, said: "Who writes your speeches, General?" Gen. Grant looked at the committee man, but made no answer. The anxious member from the West again said: "We want to know; as Colfax can make his own speeches, and they say you cant." Gep. Grant turned away from the speaker and made no answer. Colfax turned to the man from the West and requested him not to make any such remarks in future.

The great feature of the evening, however, was the presence of the negro delegate from North Carolina. His name is 7. H. Harris, a delegate in the Chicago Convention from the Fourth District of North Carolina, late a member of the North Carolina Constitutional Convention, a candidate for Congress (he declined, however, in favor of a carpet-bagger), and now a member of the committee to apprise the Radical nominees of their good luck at Chicago. He was introduced, of course, by the immense manager Washburne, but neither General Grant, Colfax, the-ladies present, nor any one of the great Radical Mogula seemed to know Brother Harris. The company at one time were nearly all crowded in the back parlor, while Harris was observed standing solitary and alone in a corner of the front parlor room. There he remained for over half an hour—the observed of no one except the reporters, who proceeded to take side notes of Brother Harris' solitary condition. It was a fact to which many can testify, that neitler Grant nor Colfax, save at the introduction, took any notice of Harris during the evening. He was like our Jake on a picnic, "not fixed"—or poor Sambo at a dance, "widout Dinab being dar."

General Hawley, General Logan, nor any of the larger Radical guns deigned to notice this practical innovation of black upon white. He was not noticed by the politicians, and only pitied by the reporters. He "stuck," however, remaining until after supper; secured a place at the table, and, like all true breads of the African type, did full: justice to ices, berries, and sweetmeats generally. He finally retired, unhonored and unsung. Alas, Sambo, mark thy coming fate! HE SOUTHERN DELEGATES AT CHICAGO

A committee advocating the claims of a certain candidate waited upon the Mississippi delegation, and after stating their business, were told by the chairman, in the presence of the whole delegation, that these candidates have got to do something before they would vote for them. We are poor and want money, was the constant story. In fact the carpetbaggers were looking after their rations, and were determined to have them.

A friend of Wade went to one of the Florida delegation and asked him to support Wade. The Flerida delegate wanted to know what Wade would do for him. "Why," says he, "if I go for Fenton I can get my expenses paid to this convention."

his convention."
It is impossible to tell whether the stories It is impossible to tell whether the stories about delegations being purchased are all true or not but the boldness of the Southern delegates talking about it gives good reason for crediting most of the stories. If they are, then what must be thought of the party which clains to represent the morality and virtue of the country, and puts into its platform an anticorruption resolution, and yet resorts to the purchase of votes at its national convention.

A delegation from one State composed of fourteen, in which there were three negroes, it is reported, were sold out for $1400, negroes and all. After two ballots another party steps into the field and paid for five of those fourteen votes $250, and they voted on all subsequent ballots just as he wanted them.

Pendleton the First Choice of Georgia

[From the Augusta Constitutionalist.] If the South is compelled to have a say in the matter, and the Southern States a chance to vote in November, we unhesitatingly pro-nounce that the great heart of Georgia beats in unison with the lofty honor and sublime spirit of George H. Pendleton. We have watched the current of affairs from day to day, and if ever a great party had the coming man indicated by the people everywhere, the time is now and the man is Pendleton. It is time is now and the man is Pendieton. It is believed that he has struck a true cord for success, and that he represents the complete antagonism of that military despotism which sprang from the dust of war, and, drunk with blood, riots over the land from its extreme Northern border to the remotest verge of the South. In person, in character, in intellect, in contility in covers in hours, in worth of south. In person, in character, in intellect, in gentility, in courage, in honor, in worth of every kind, he appears as the exact opposite of the demon of radicalism, and is the avenging Michael to lay the foul fiend.

CHARLESTON, S. C., WEDNESDAY MORNING, JUNE 3, 1868. as Chase was, perhaps he would feel more interest in the result. He also expressed the opinion that Chase was still fishing for a nomination by the exireme Radicals. "But General," said his friend, "you are now the candidate of those very men." "I don't so understand it," replied Grant, "and when you see my letter of acceptance you will discover that such is not my position." This would seem to threaten that Grant is about coming back on his Chicago friends, as it, is very certain he begins to feel that defeat awaits him in the contest. He charges that Judge Chase is responsible for any disaster which may befall the party.

It has now become exceedingly doubtful whether the Southern States will be admitted to representation in Congress at its present session. The constitutions which have been adopted by the carpet-baggers are so monstrous in many of their provisions and so palpatrons in many of their provisions and so palpatrons in the reaction of the Merchant and their chief will be stripped off and the owners of them cordered to assume a lower seat in the theatre of afairs. The tinkle of Seward's little bell is not forgotten; the thousand wrongs inflicted upon the whites of the Southare freeh in memory and ever instant. The military have been trusted as saviours of the Bepublic, and discovered to be worse than its destroyers. The genius of the reaction calls for a civilian, and, in the ranks of civil life, where can be found a more glorious man than George H. Pendleton? There is not a wind that blows from any quarter of the country that does not come laden with his name. The grumble of the bondholders may affect to taint the breeze with their carpings and diplomacy, but the choice of the country is expressed with an unanimity not to be mistaken, and, if Georgia is to have a voice in the nomination and elective that the world. unanimity not to be mistaken, and, if Georgia is to have a voice in the nomination and election of a President, we believe that she would choose first, last and always, George H. Pendleton, as the true statesman whose splendid intellect would restore the republic to its ancient glory, and whose lion heart would maintain it against all detriment.

Should the Democracy nominate Mr. Pendleton and construct a platform suitable to the man and his measures, we think his chances of beating, and even routing, General Grant admiration and certain.

Ritualism in New Jersey.

The Ritualistic party in the Episcopal Church achieved a remarkable victory in the New Jersey Diocesan Convention, and the fact is worth noting, as another sign of the remarkable progress of that branch of the church towards "development." In his annual charge to the clergy, the Bishop (Odenheimer) took the "highest" possible ground. He counselled obedience to the canon laws, as embodying the will of God. He also denounced the growing tendency to argue the abstract merits of the law, instead of readily submitting to it. This was understood to refer to the lyng case. This stirred up the Evangelical (or Low Church) party to a demonstration in the the other direction, which took the form of a series of resolutions submitted by Cortland Parker, Esq., of rection, which took the form of a series of resolutions submitted by Cortland Parker, Esq., of which the following are the most remarkable:

Resolved, That this convention deplores the introduction of said changes in the manner of worshipping God, by whatever ancient practice in any other church the same may have been recognized, and whatever their intrinsic merit, and expressing its fervent hope that the same may ceuse from among us.

Resolved, That among the practices to which allusion is made, this convention will particularize the following: Bowing at the name of Jesus at other times than when occurring in the Creed; turning especially to the east or to Jesus at other times than when occuring in the Creed; turning especially to the east or to the Communion table when making ascription of praise to Almighty God, or to any person of the Holy Trinity; intoning the prayers of the Pealter; singing any portion of the Liturgy which the rubrics do not expressly permit to be sung; the use, by any minister sot a bishop, of any ministerial garments or decoration in divine worship, excepting the gown, surplice, stole and bands; the use of Communion tables constructed in any manner so as more to resemble an alter than table; the placing of crosses, or crucifixes thereupon, or of candles or candlesticks or different coverings as part of the ornaments or furniture thereof; the intentional elevation of the bread or wine in the tional elevation of the bread or wine in the tional elevation of the bread or wine in the sacrament of the Lord's Supper; the use of incense; the practice of crossing the person; ceremonial processions immediately before, after, or during divine worship; and generally all acts, intentional postures and conduct in the celebration of divine worship which tend to make the same resemble, in outward seeming, that of the Church of Rome.

After an animated debate, the resolutions were rejected by the following very decisive vote:

NATURE IS THE GREAT PHYSIC-IAN .- This is now admitted by the medical profession as a fundamental principle of healing science. It is wisely provided by the human economy that whenever anything is wrong in the physical system the natural forces of the body are brought to bear to expel the disease. The great aim therefore, is to strengthen the natural powers. This has been kept in view by the skilful compounders of HOSTET-TER'S STOMACH BITTERS, which merates to give tresh vitality to all the organs of he body. The effect of this medicine upon the stomach, the liver and the kidneys, is prompt and decisive. The patient, who is wise enough to quit drugging and try the BITTERS, soon feels as if he had taken a new lease of life, and as he continues the use of the article he is overjoyed to find the streams of health coursing through his frame. It is prepared with great care, and its component pars are entirely vegetable. It is free from the objections so often urged against preparations of the kind. As a MEDI-CAL AGENT, it has no equal, while its pleasing flavor and healthful effects have mide it a gener favorite. It is free from all properties calculated to impair the system, and its operations are at once mild, soothing and efficient. All who have used HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTELS attest its virtues and commend it to use.

Even those who are in the enjoyment of perfec health frequently have need to have recourse to tonics as preventives of discase. We are never too well armed against the assaults of "the ills that flesh is heir to." In health or sickness this tonic cannot be taken regularly without giving vitality and elasticity to the system. 6
